To do him justice, he did not lack a certain energy and ambition, as the foregoing proves him possessed of a certain cunning and assurance. He was never admitted into the ministry; but he "wagged his pow in a pulpit." He preached for nearly a year, and was a distinguished black-jack revivalist, having, like Bottom the Weaver, "a great voice." It was he who, in the midst of a thrilling exhortation at Billy Keele's meeting-house, paused and cried out, "some o' you idle, trifting, no-account, vagabond boys letch in some more straw," and then raising his voice to its highest and most thrilling pitch added, "Straw! Straw! For the sake o' the Lord, straw! There'll be souls lost this night for the want of straw!" He meant that the straw! There'll be souls lost this night for the want of straw!" He meant that the mourners were suffering, and that unless they were made comfortable the work of grace could not go on. He was successful as an exhorter, and, being a hog-drover and a mule-driver as well, he extended the sphere of his fame and influence to Ala-The promitive variety ago.

Stokes took it, "just for fun," he said, and, "just for fun," the people elected him. Thus he was transferred from Liberty to Wash-ington, and his career as a patriot, statesman and soldier commenced.

He roomed with Emerson Etheridge, who had within him that which could run a dozen ordinary members of Congress besides one extraordinary one, and for two years Siekes was "navigated" by Etheridge. He had all the continuous and the second of the continuous and the cont "the Union, the Constitution, and the en-forcement of the lawa". He was a pro-digious fellow. It was splendld to see him in the House with his broad, red face and won for him the title of the "Bald Eagle," though the difference between Stokes and the "Bird of Liberty" may be measured by re are people who will be ill-natured truth of the saying. Stokes.

About two-and-thrity years ago the little area to the stoke the recent number of the recent num upon us. And what did William the Con-ville fell. Buell, backed by a Federal army, arrived. Andy Johason, with a proceeding and the matter of things began to be assured—Stokes mounted his critter and rode down to the State capital. He was a patriot again. He had a negro boy with him whom he desired to cell, and, leaving this boy with Captair Haynes, who kept a "pen" on Cherry street, he burned for his country, and, as an evidence of the fact, got together all the loose material he could find and called them "Stokes' cavalry."

There were some good men among them. find and called them "Stokes' cavalry."
There were some good men among them, who tell into discredit, while Stokes' influence prevalled over the rest. They were active for three years within the Federal lines, led by Stokes. They could rob a hen-rocot or knock an old woman in the head with surprising agility at Stokes' command. But only two events of note are mentioned of their career. One was an attack made on Stokes by a gallant fellow been any time since Old Hickory plucked Dickinson and John Bell beat Felix Grundy for Congress. This latter event may be taken as the calmination of its glory, but it was a sort of border-line and rendesvous between the lowlends and highlands of Middle Tennessee for many years.

Of these things however, barring the light they may throw upon the locality which gave a start in life to the subject of this biography, it is not the purpose of the present writing to speak in detail. They belong to history, and are to be found in Hanney and in Parton. That which is istended to be recorded here is traditional, but may be faithfully trusted as part of the hitherto unwritten story of the Southwest. The early days of Liberty we pass by. The day of days to our chronicle was a day of the spring of 1828.

There was a quarter race at Liberty. Two or three neighborhood horses were entered. A crowd of people was assembled. Whisky flowed freely and betting became animated. Presently—just before the entries were closed—a man and a horse a re seen approaching the spot down the Alexandria road. A man and a horse a loose expression, designed to indicate that the new-comers were not any worse though they might have been something hetter, for both were a sight to see. whom he tried to diagrace, whon—to quote the language of the day—"he bellowed like a steer." The other was Dick McCann's fisg of-truce sent in to Negley to request him "to remove the women and children, and Stoke' carairy, as he was going to correctly distributed in the state of the sense o carry the city by assault."

Was it strange that Stokes should turn up a blazing radical under the Brownlow dispensation? Does anybody wonder that dispensation. Does anybody wonder that he got back into Congress and swallowed the irox-clad oath without choking? A couple of years ago he followed Etheridge in his canvass, and Etheridge skinned him every day, and Stokes was happy. Ether-idge called him his "sweet William," and worse though they might have been some-thing better; for both were a sight to see. The man wore a coon-skin cap, a check shirt and a pair of jeans breeches stuffed side called him his "sweet William," and said he was carrying him about to exhibit him. Subsequently he tried to beat Brown-low out of the Senate, but failed, and the rest is familiar to the public. He's now an independent radical candidate for Governor of Tennessee. His platform is three shades blacker than the blacket shade resultions. blacker than the blackest black republican

Do you not admire him reader? Is he not your beau ideal of a Governor? Senter is cartainly not too fine a piece of cutlery; but Stokes from having given his name to "Stokes' cavalry"—will he not grace the robes of office and illuminate the halls of the capitol of Tennessee?

There seems to be a conflict of titles between the Federal Government and Brig-ham Young. The Government claims to be the proprietor of certain lands in Utah, having never disposed of them to any par-ty, and Young claims to be sovereign own-er of the same lands. Of course the Government has power to settle the matter, and we trust that it will do this promptly, shough in a just and proper way. The Federal authorities certainly have the means of knowing what lands are public lands and what ones are not, and they shoull no longer tolerate the ab-surd and insolent pretensions of the Mormon chief. Let the public lands in bams, where he journeyed once a year. He grew rich amain. But after all he wearied of the monotony of religion. He pined for politics. It must be a good thing he thought—certainly better than driving hops and trading mules and revivals—and so he set up for a strateman at Alexandria, near the scene of his exploit as a jockey. He chartered the grocery, bought the distillery and leased the mill, conducted them with an eye to popular effect; and presently Stokes was in the Legislature.

Fortune smiles upon audacity. Of the Stokes family William was the black sheep. A brother of his—a most accomplished, elequent and virtuous man—a lawyer of real learning and shillty—did not get on half so speedily as this race-riding preacher and speculator. Time trotted for him like an ambiling pony. In 1889—for it is needless to encumber this marration with the career of William as a local legislator other was a diventor and present the career of William as a local legislator of the career of William as a local legislator of the career of William as a local legislator of the career of William as a local legislator of the career of William as a local legislator of the career of William as a local legislator of the career of William as a local legislator of the career of William as a local legislator of the career of William as a local legislator of the career of William as a local legislator of the career of William as a local legislator of the career of William as a local legislator of the career of William as a local legislator of the learning and seed the mile of the distillation of the learning and holding and cultivating them as the Pacific railroad is now open, action upon this subject should no longer to deferred.

FORM OF FEVER AND AGUE.

LIMERICK CHILL CURE.

Once Broken, Will Not Return. Contains No Quinine or Arsonic, not Any Deleterious Substance Whatever.

The Cure is Permanent .- The Chill,

This preparation is carefully compounded of pure-ly vegetable ingredients, and never falls, when pro-perly takes, to cure the most obstinate case of terms and ague, nearalgis, and all maintons diseases. Un-liae chill remedies generally, it requires no pargative to be takes with it, the medicine theelf acting gently and agreeably apon the idver and bowels, effectuall removing the cause of the disease, not merely te-porarily checking it. Herein consists one great vartage it has over all other preparations. I crowning excellence of this remety, however, ab-dericately of the care, is the

ENTIRELY HARMLESS-SAFE FOR CHILDREN OF ANY AGE.

Never Fails to Effectually Destroy Worms.

Since the discovery of Santonia, the tasteless active principle of the Karopean Worm-need (Seman Contra) its consumption has wonderfully increased. The seed in substance has been long and favorably known as a vermitings, but list unpleasant taste and odor, and the bulk of the dose, have unterfered with its use in this country. At this time, the Santonia, on account of its being stateless, and a reliable versifiedge, is fast displacing all other remedies for worms.

Almost all of the popular worm nowirms of the day depend for their effects upon the Santonia which they constain but in these it is found in varying proportions and of uncertain purity; and very often again in combination with other elements unknown to the physiciars, and often hasardons in their nature.

In purpose it to present to the medical profession this valuable medicine in a simple, reliable, and agreeable form, in determined quantities, and of uniform composition. To accomplish this, I have prepared these lessnages with great ozer, of Santonia of issted parity, very carefully distributed throughout the masterdas have been so composited that the sant four within the Lossages will stant or elimate.

Thousands of Children die annually for the want of a Reliable Worm Destroyer.

TUESDAY MORNING, JENE 8, 1809. ROUND-ABOUT.

L Miss Martineau's Biographical Sketches has passed to a second edition in London. She has written for it a new preace, in which she seplains the principles which guided her in the preparations of the sketches. She does not believe in the maxim "nothing but good of the dead," but prefers to set up truths as her standard and judge every person rugidly but candidly. The reception her book has met she thinks is an evisione that soc'ely pronounces for an ethical standard of character in the first place, and, in the next, for fidelity to that standard."

and gorgeous suit of clothes which Mr. John Jsy, our new Minister to Austria, had made by a fishlomable London tailor. It appears that he secured the services of the distinguished "artist" who gets up the heavy swells of Belgravia so stanningly, and there is no doubt that he will present himself at the Court of Viscons in the height of the highest fishlon. By the way, it has just been assumed from Visma by cable that Mr. Jay has had a special audience with the E speror, and has been introduced by Baron von Beust.

An Improdent Diplomat.
Senor Tassars, the lately appointed Spanish Minister at the Court of St. Jamer, has been bidden not to present his credentials, but at once to return. The reason for this recall is said to be his imprudence in talking, both at Bayonne and Pais, and in London itself, of the probability of a restoration of the Prince of Asturias. Senor Tassars was originally a moderado, but he had been, or seemed to have been, won over to the views of the unionist party after the September revolution, and on his return from his American mission he was thought to have dived deeply into the sehemes of an Iberian Union. Tassars was at one time Spanish Minister at Washington. He is quite a poet, and a very cultivated man. VII.

Upon the fifthyday of the Craig-Sprague case at Wheaton, Ill. (some of the letters of the parties we have already given), an immense back of the genite Amanda's letters to the faithless Eliaha were read, and during the reading the hoary headed Sprague languished in a beer sainoun near the court-house, not being able to "stand them letters." An obtiteperous "stand them letters." An obtiteperous Kentunky wiscess who refused to testify was hustled off to jail. Amanda's letters were awfully long and mandin. The fact, there is no kind of human existence that can compensate for the loss of the solid and permanent pleasures of city society. These we get, in a diffuse form and with many minor modifications, at a fashlocable watering-place; but even that place is only a poor compromise between the two extremes of human life, combining all the disadvantageous features, with few of the advantages, of both the city and the country. Those who are packing their trunks to go among the feative followers of plows and the red-armed dairy-maids have our distintinguished pity.

His Speech is the English Parliament.

[From the New York Times.]

Mr. Forster's speech is the first utterance on the subject from any member of the British government since the Senae rejected the Alabama treasy of Reverly Johnson, and the Alabama treasy of Reverly Johnson, and the Alabama treasy of Reverly Johnson, and the Alabama treasy of Reverly Indiana, and the Alabama treasy of Reverly Indiana. He disclains any authority for his position—reminds his hearers that he is not a Cabinet Minheter, and says that he speaks solely for himself. At the same time it is well to remember that, though not in the Cabinet, he is a member of the British government, is Vice President of the Committee of Privy Council on Education, and is a very influential member of Parliament and a leader of the dominant political party. We have no doubt, therefore, that the ground he has taken is the same as will be taken by the British government when Mr. Modley presents the question.

The coming oratoric of Rether, at Weitger Hall, is getting to be the talk of the town. The musical public are preparing for it as for the advent of a grand season of opers bonfie; and weil they may, for it will be a grand exhibition of the musical isalent of Louisville, which possesses a high reputation far and wide. The public are getting ready; meanwhile the grand chorus of voices which shakes Weisiger block every night or so tell that Professor Foots fully appreciate the importance that attaches to the coming affair, and is preparing to meet the emergency with something that will do honor to Louisville and her musical reputation.
